

How Much

Would you lose today should fire destroy or burglars steal your jewelry, bonds, securities and other private papers?

Some things could not be made good with the fire insurance on your property.

A safety box in our steel vaults at from $3 to $50 a year is the strongest insurance against loss of your valuables.

Why not rent one today?

The First National Bank

Capital and Surplus
$3,000,000

AT THE HOTELS

G. W. Leach of Chicago, H. G. Fulton of Eutaw and W. S. Lyle of Huntsville, are among those stopping at the Morris.

Charles E. Burchell of New York, Karl Hobbittell of Chicago and R. M. Jordan of New Orleans, are registered at the Elumina.

Edgar Lucas of Louisville, J. H. Foster of Wilmington, N. C. and J. E. Davis of Cincinnati, are at the Florence.

J. H. Woods of Sedan, Walter Hoffman of Waverly and George A. Sowell of Alexandria City, are guests at the Birmingham.

Frank Jewell of Atlanta, J. C. Cole of Dallas, Tex., and F. L. Pence of Memphis, are at the Metropolitan.

T. W. Elisele of Indianapolis, R. B. Knowles of New York and R. H. Sobey of New Orleans, are registered at the Empire.

TURNBULL IS BACK FROM NEW ENGLAND

Bell Telephone Manager Has Not Had Time to Report on Complaint Recently Made

D. F. Turnbull, manager for the Southern Bell company in this district, returned home yesterday after an extensive vacation in the east and in New England. Mr. Turnbull was absent when the charge was made that his company was rendering indifferent service in Birmingham and a demand made that the commission take the question up. The formal note of the commission to the company was taken up yesterday by Mr. Turnbull. No answer has yet been given to the city.

Mr. Turnbull was unwilling yesterday to make any statement for publication in connection with the complaint. He has been unable to get in touch with the real reason for the complaint and on that account was not sufficiently informed to make a formal statement. Mr. Turnbull has often asserted that at a tremendous cost his company had made improvements here to perfect the service and that nothing would be left undone to render even better service.

Mr. Turnbull said in reference to general dissatisfaction with the service of the country were rather satisfactory and a fine autumn trade volume was generally expected.

FREEMAN SAFE IN TROUBLED MEXICO

Local Officials of Alabama Power Co. Have Received Word From Vice President—Will Return Soon

Local officials of the Alabama Power company have from the vice president, W. W. Freeman, that he is perfectly safe in Mexico and is being accorded the best of treatment. Mr. Freeman is in the troubled republic on business for Sperry & Co., of London. He went away several weeks ago, at which time it was incorrectly reported that Mr. Freeman was taking a hazardous chance by visiting Mexico and that efforts to persuade him not to make the trip were fruitless.

Mr. Freeman advises the local officials that his work does not bring him into contact with any of the factions and that he is perfectly safe. Mr. Freeman is engaged in looking after a water power development and some extension work for the English interests. He is expected to complete his mission to Mexico during the next few weeks and will return to Birmingham. He will visit New York before coming home.

WHAT OSCAR TURNER THINKS OF NEW CLUB

Oscar C. Turner, recognized far and wide as one of Birmingham's "live ones," writes the Birmingham News-Paper club as follows:

"I thank you for your invitation to become an associate member of your club, and I enclose herewith check and card properly filled out and shall be glad to become one of your members. I have always felt that Birmingham needed a club of this character, and I am glad that the live newspaper men have seen the situation, and as usual with them, grasped it. I know you will have a fine success and I congratulate you."

Capital $500,000.00

Surplus (Earned) $550,000.00

Birmingham Trust & Savings Co.

Capital and Surplus $1,050,000.00

An Employee That Takes No Holidays

No doubt you are a steady and faithful worker but you wouldn't want to work 365 days in the year, and keep it up year in and year out.

But a Savings Account in this bank is willing to do that. It is willing to work for you right along without any holidays—and work so faithfully that it never requires watching.

A. W. SMITH, President
TOM O. SMITH, V-President
W. H. MANLY, Cashier

EEENSON CAIN, Asst. Cashier
C. D. COTTEN, Asst. Cashier
E. W. FINCH, Asst. Cashier

4 Per Cent Paid On Savings Deposits

SUCCESS IS ASSURED FOR CONVENTION OF RETAIL MERCHANTS

Many Acceptances Already Received by Chamber of Commerce Secretary

GEORGE BEYER TO SPEAK ON "SELLING"

Workers Preparing More Literature to be Sent Out in Few Days.

Local Merchants Will be Asked to Decorate

Patriotism and state pride prove to be important factors in the coming convention of the North Alabama merchants in Birmingham August 27 and 28, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. It is being pointed out to the merchants that, being residents of the state of Alabama, they owe it to themselves and to their neighbors to conduct their business dealings with their fellow Alabamians, other things being equal.

And the "other things" which in this case are prices, service, quality and quantity of goods and courteous treatment, is what the jobbers of Birmingham propose to do.

The story of the boys is simple. They received no education, never went to school in their lives, and up to a few years ago had never been out of Lamar county. They farmed and hunted in the wild hills of the western part of Alabama and only left the mountain fastness of Lamar and Fayette counties a few winters ago to work in the coal mines. This was where they came in active touch with the commercial era of the present century.

In the coal mines about Brilliant and Empire they met Barney S. Lewis, who had just finished a prison term, and a friendship was begun between this convict and the two ignorant mountain boys, a friendship that was later to bring Jerry and Henry Enis within the shadow of the gallows.

The two Enis boys in the winter worked in the coal mines and at times saved a few dollars and in the spring and summer they farmed on their native heath. They never had at any time over $1000 between them, and to the police have never as yet been able to account for over a few hundred dollars.

During the time that the Enis boys were farming and mining the friendship between them and Lewis ripened and the theory of the local detectives is that he induced the two illiterate mountain boys to hold up the trains. Both Jerry and Henry Enis were expert dynamiters, which experience they had secured in the mines, and both had the necessary courage to hold up a train. The theory of the police is that after robbing the trains Lewis kept the major share of the booty, as neither of the Enis boys knew how to figure.

Both of the Enis boys never having had much money, were thrilled, in the opinion of the police, with the large sum that even Lewis allowed them as their share. So many $20 bills turned their heads and their antics caused the mountain folk of Lamar and Fayette counties to whisper and turn eyes of suspicion on the young men. This was further emphasized when Jerry Enis pinned scores of $20 bills over an old coat of his father and made him a present of it. And also Henry was married, and a joyous dance followed, the necklace of the bride—$20 bills hanging from her neck to the floor—caused the mountain folk to open their eyes in wonder.

Everything Jerry and Henry Enis did following the spectacular robbery in Mississippi showed their ignorance and inexperience and proved conclusively to the police that they were only the tools of the shrewd Barney S. Lewis.

But the Enis boys refuse point blank to admit that Lewis used them. They admit that they know Lewis and that they were friendly with him, and also that Lewis came to visit them in May just a few days before the robbery, but deny that Lewis used them to further his purposes in holding up trains in Mississippi.

At the city hall or in the detectives' room they paced impatiently up and down like caged animals. They are on the verge of a nervous breakdown. But when pressed down by questions and confused they always monotonously repeat: "I don't know," or "I will tell all in court."

Chief Bodeker has repeatedly expressed his hearty sympathy for the boys, because he believes that Lewis is responsible for their plight. Chief Bodeker is the man responsible for sending Lewis to the mines in 1900, and is well acquainted with him. Chief Bodeker also thinks that Lewis, when he sees that enough evidence is at hand to convict him, will make a deal with the federal authorities and turn state's evidence, escaping with a light sentence.

Requisition papers for Jerry and Henry Enis were signed by Governor O'Neal yesterday morning and sent to Chief Bodeker for special delivery. He received them last night.

The two men were turned over to T. K. Trigg, who had been named a special agent for the state of Mississippi to take them to the state prison at Natchez. The officers left last night at 10:40 o'clock for Purvis, Miss.

LOCAL POLICE BELIEVE THAT THE ENIS BROTHERS WERE TOOLS OF BARNEY LEWIS

By RICHARD F. LUSIER

BARNEY SMITH LEWIS
These are the three men, who, it is alleged by the police, secured nearly $100,000 in the hold up of the New York and New Orleans express at Okahala, Miss., May 14, 1912. It is the theory of the police that the Enis brothers were used as tools by Barney Lewis. The Enis brothers were returned to Mississippi last night.

HENRY ENIS

JERRY ENIS

The tragedy of illiteracy is depicted on the countenances of Jerry and Henry Enis, the two Lamar county mountain boys accused of holding up and robbing the New York and New Orleans express at Okahala, eight miles south of Hattiesburg, Miss., on the night of May 14, 1912. They are still in city jail and anyone seeing them realizes that the theory of the local police is correct—they were used as tools by the unscrupulous ex-convict, Barney S. Lewis.

The story of the boys is simple. They received no education, never went to school in their lives, and up to a few years ago had never been out of Lamar county. They farmed and hunted in the wild hills of the western part of Alabama and only left the mountain fastness of Lamar and Fayette counties a few winters ago to work in the coal mines. This was where they came in active touch with the commercial era of the present century.

In the coal mines about Brilliant and Empire they met Barney S. Lewis, who had just finished a prison term, and a friendship was begun between this convict and the two ignorant mountain boys, a friendship that was later to bring Jerry and Henry Enis within the shadow of the gallows.

The two Enis boys in the winter worked in the coal mines and at times saved a few dollars and in the spring and summer they farmed on their native heath. They never had at any time over $1000 between them, and to the police have never as yet been able to account for over a few hundred dollars.

During the time that the Enis boys were farming and mining the friendship between them and Lewis ripened and the theory of the local detectives is that he induced the two illiterate mountain boys to hold up the trains. Both Jerry and Henry Enis were expert dynamiters, which experience they had secured in the mines, and both had the necessary courage to hold up a train. The theory of the police is that after robbing the trains Lewis kept the major share of the booty, as neither of the Enis boys knew how to figure.

Both of the Enis boys never having had much money, were thrilled, in the opinion of the police, with the large sum that even Lewis allowed them as their share. So many $20 bills turned their heads and their antics caused the mountain folk of Lamar and Fayette counties to whisper and turn eyes of suspicion on the young men. This was further emphasized when Jerry Enis pinned scores of $20 bills over an old coat of his father and made him a present of it. And also Henry was married, and a joyous dance followed, the necklace of the bride—$20 bills hanging from her neck to the floor—caused the mountain folk to open their eyes in wonder.

Everything Jerry and Henry Enis did following the spectacular robbery in Mississippi showed their ignorance and inexperience and proved conclusively to the police that they were only the tools of the shrewd Barney S. Lewis.

But the Enis boys refuse point blank to admit that Lewis used them. They admit that they know Lewis and that they were friendly with him, and also that Lewis came to visit them in May just a few days before the robbery, but deny that Lewis used them to further his purposes in holding up trains in Mississippi.

At the city hall or in the detectives' room they paced impatiently up and down like caged animals. They are on the verge of a nervous breakdown. But when pressed down by questions and confused they always monotonously repeat: "I don't know," or "I will tell all in court."

Chief Bodeker has repeatedly expressed his hearty sympathy for the boys, because he believes that Lewis is responsible for their plight. Chief Bodeker is the man responsible for sending Lewis to the mines in 1900, and is well acquainted with him. Chief Bodeker also thinks that Lewis, when he sees that enough evidence is at hand to convict him, will make a deal with the federal authorities and turn state's evidence, escaping with a light sentence.

Requisition papers for Jerry and Henry Enis were signed by Governor O'Neal yesterday morning and sent to Chief Bodeker for special delivery. He received them last night.

The two men were turned over to T. K. Trigg, who had been named a special agent for the state of Mississippi to take them to the state prison at Natchez. The officers left last night at 10:40 o'clock for Purvis, Miss.

Everything Jerry and Henry Enis did following the spectacular robbery in Mississippi showed their ignorance and inexperience and proved conclusively to the police that they were only the tools of the shrewd Barney S. Lewis.

But the Enis boys refuse point blank to admit that Lewis used them. They admit that they know Lewis and that they were friendly with him, and also that Lewis came to visit them in May just a few days before the robbery, but deny that Lewis used them to further his purposes in holding up trains in Mississippi.

At the city hall or in the detectives' room they paced impatiently up and down like caged animals. They are on the verge of a nervous breakdown. But when pressed down by questions and confused they always monotonously repeat: "I don't know," or "I will tell all in court."

Chief Bodeker has repeatedly expressed his hearty sympathy for the boys, because he believes that Lewis is responsible for their plight. Chief Bodeker is the man responsible for sending Lewis to the mines in 1900, and is well acquainted with him. Chief Bodeker also thinks that Lewis, when he sees that enough evidence is at hand to convict him, will make a deal with the federal authorities and turn state's evidence, escaping with a light sentence.

Requisition papers for Jerry and Henry Enis were signed by Governor O'Neal yesterday morning and sent to Chief Bodeker for special delivery. He received them last night.

The two men were turned over to T. K. Trigg, who had been named a special agent for the state of Mississippi to take them to the state prison at Natchez. The officers left last night at 10:40 o'clock for Purvis, Miss.

Everything Jerry and Henry Enis did following the spectacular robbery in Mississippi showed their ignorance and inexperience and proved conclusively to the police that they were only the tools of the shrewd Barney S. Lewis.

But the Enis boys refuse point blank to admit that Lewis used them. They admit that they know Lewis and that they were friendly with him, and also that Lewis came to visit them in May just a few days before the robbery, but deny that Lewis used them to further his purposes in holding up trains in Mississippi.

At the city hall or in the detectives' room they paced impatiently up and down like caged animals. They are on the verge of a nervous breakdown. But when pressed down by questions and confused they always monotonously repeat: "I don't know," or "I will tell all in court."

Chief Bodeker has repeatedly expressed his hearty sympathy for the boys, because he believes that Lewis is responsible for their plight. Chief Bodeker is the man responsible for sending Lewis to the mines in 1900, and is well acquainted with him. Chief Bodeker also thinks that Lewis, when he sees that enough evidence is at hand to convict him, will make a deal with the federal authorities and turn state's evidence, escaping with a light sentence.

Requisition papers for Jerry and Henry Enis were signed by Governor O'Neal yesterday morning and sent to Chief Bodeker for special delivery. He received them last night.

The two men were turned over to T. K. Trigg, who had been named a special agent for the state of Mississippi to take them to the state prison at Natchez. The officers left last night at 10:40 o'clock for Purvis, Miss.

Everything Jerry and Henry Enis did following the spectacular robbery in Mississippi showed their ignorance and inexperience and proved conclusively to the police that they were only the tools of the shrewd Barney S. Lewis.

But the Enis boys refuse point blank to admit that Lewis used them. They admit that they know Lewis and that they were friendly with him, and also that Lewis came to visit them in May just a few days before the robbery, but deny that Lewis used them to further his purposes in holding up trains in Mississippi.

At the city hall or in the detectives' room they paced impatiently up and down like caged animals. They are on the verge of a nervous breakdown. But when pressed down by questions and confused they always monotonously repeat: "I don't know," or "I will tell all in court."

Chief Bodeker has repeatedly expressed his hearty sympathy for the boys, because he believes that Lewis is responsible for their plight. Chief Bodeker is the man responsible for sending Lewis to the mines in 1900, and is well acquainted with him. Chief Bodeker also thinks that Lewis, when he sees that enough evidence is at hand to convict him, will make a deal with the federal authorities and turn state's evidence, escaping with a light sentence.

Requisition papers for Jerry and Henry Enis were signed by Governor O'Neal yesterday morning and sent to Chief Bodeker for special delivery. He received them last night.

The two men were turned over to T. K. Trigg, who had been named a special agent for the state of Mississippi to take them to the state prison at Natchez. The officers left last night at 10:40 o'clock for Purvis, Miss.

Everything Jerry and Henry Enis did following the spectacular robbery in Mississippi showed their ignorance and inexperience and proved conclusively to the

DEMERE ANNOUNCED AS NEW SECRETARY OF SOUTHERN CLUB

Well Known Real Estate Man Succeeds James Randall Who Recently Resigned Position

It was announced yesterday that Capt. F. L. Demere, the well known real estate man, had been elected secretary of the Southern club.

He succeeds James Randall, who has been secretary for some time, but who resigned to take up different work. Captain Demere's election was announced yesterday by Col. Tom O. Smith, president of the Southern club.

The new secretary is widely known in Birmingham, where he has resided for many years.

and folders, each containing pictures of some part of the city or district with a few short crisp sentences telling of some details of the entertainment during the convention, something about the city where the convention will be held, something about the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

All Birmingham jobbing houses are sending out word to their traveling men to talk convention to every merchant they see and for the traveling men themselves to prepare to be in Birmingham during the convention itself, its purpose, etc., and they are being sent to every merchant who received an invitation.

The chamber wholesale trade committee will urge the downtown merchants and business men to decorate their places of business if they can. The Chamber of Commerce building will be decorated as will the city hall. An effort will be made to have the buildings in the downtown section decorated so that the city will assume a gala appearance and will welcome the visitors.

ACTION ON CLAYTON IS EXPECTED SOON

If Adverse O'Neal Could Quickly Call Session

Work is Finished to Con-sult Friends

Early action by the Senate committee on privileges and elections in regard to the credentials of Henry D. Clayton, recently appointed to succeed the late Senator Joseph F. Johnston, is anticipated.

The credentials were sent to the committee yesterday, and despite an informal report last night that action would be deferred until after the passage of the tariff legislation, it is generally believed that within the next few days, it will be definitely known whether or not the governor's appointment will be seated.

The Washington special of yesterday quoting Senator Bankhead was identical with the senator's statement made in The Age-Herald prior to his departure for Washington. In case of an adverse report by the committee, Senator Bankhead believes that that action will be taken at once, that the governor can assemble the lawmakers in three days, and that the lawmakers in one day can pass a joint resolution authorizing the governor to make a temporary appointment, and providing machinery for a special election.

There seems to be general preference that the governor call a special session of the legislature rather than provide for a special election. It is understood that if it is determined that the governor had no constitutional right to name a successor to Senator Johnston, he would have no right, without legislative action, to call a special election.

And the expense of the special election would be much greater than the expense of an extra session of the legislature. Should the legislature meet and pass a joint resolution it is estimated that the expense to the state would not be in excess of $200, whereas a special election, held in every precinct of the state, would cost practically $50,000.

It is not generally believed that the legislature if called for a specific purpose would attempt to enact other legislation, and it is thought that if the legislature desired to act upon matters not included in the call of the governor, it would lack the necessary two-thirds majority to do so.

Mr. Underwood's Attitude

In a letter to a personal and political friend, Mr. Underwood wrote yesterday that he would not enter a special election for the Senate. He stated, however, that he would come to Birmingham following the passage of the tariff bill, and consult with friends relative to entering the field for the regular term. In this regard, it is not generally believed that Mr. Underwood would oppose Mr. Clayton were he to receive the senatorial seat through a special election, or were he to be seated on his present credentials. Mr. Underwood's regard for Mr. Clayton is too great, it is believed, to permit him to make an effort to put Mr. Clayton out of Congress.

In the meantime, Congressman Holston is strenuously campaigning for the seat of Senator Johnston.

Real Estate Transfers

Deeds were placed on record yesterday in the office of the probate court showing the following transfers of property, the consideration being $1000 or more:

$2100—Ernest W. Sharer to S. R. Hales; lots 5 and 6, block 161, as shown on the map of the Ensley Land company's fifth addition to Ensley.

$2000—Birmingham Realty company to Roy Vaughan, south 10 feet of lot 13 on the Birmingham Realty company's fourth addition to the city of Birmingham.

$1500—Birmingham Realty company to Roy Vaughan, south 10 feet of lot 13 on the Birmingham Realty company's fourth addition to the city of Birmingham.

$1000—Birmingham Realty company to Roy Vaughan, south 10 feet of lot 13 on the Birmingham Realty company's fourth addition to the city of Birmingham.

$500—Birmingham Realty company to Roy Vaughan, south 10 feet of lot 13 on the Birmingham Realty company's fourth addition to the city of Birmingham.

$250—Birmingham Realty company to Roy Vaughan, south 10 feet of lot 13 on the Birmingham Realty company's fourth addition to the city of Birmingham.

$125—Birmingham Realty company to Roy Vaughan, south 10 feet of lot 13 on the Birmingham Realty company's fourth addition to the city of Birmingham.

$62.50—Birmingham Realty company to Roy Vaughan, south 10 feet of lot 13 on the Birmingham Realty company's fourth addition to the city of Birmingham.

$31.25—Birmingham Realty company to Roy Vaughan, south 10 feet of lot 13 on the Birmingham Realty company's fourth addition to the city of Birmingham.

$15.62—Birmingham Realty company to Roy Vaughan, south